1. Introduction

From the 18th National Congress of the Communist Party of China to the 19th National Congress of the Communist Party of China, the Party Central Committee with General Secretary Xi Jinping has been vigorously developing from the party and the state,^[1] achieving the goal of "two hundred years" and the "Chinese dream" of the great rejuvenation of the Chinese nation. Significant achievements have been made in planning and building a clean and honest government and fighting corruption. It can be seen from the series of important expositions of General Secretary Xi Jinping's anti-corruption struggle that purifying and reconstructing the political ecology has become the fundamental strategy of the anti-corruption struggle in the new era. Although the political life of the party has been updated and the political ecology within the party has improved significantly during the period after the 19th National Congress^[2], there are still outstanding problems that have not been resolved. Therefore, it is necessary to analyze the path of political and ecological reconstruction within the party in the new era and achieve a fundamental improvement in the political ecology within the party.

2. Logical orientation of political ecological governance reconstruction in the new era

2.1 Political consciousness of Marxist political parties

An important exposition of Marxism on the historical environment of people and society. Marxist political parties can make full use of political, economic, cultural, legal, public opinion and other means to actively manage and transform the political ecological environment, making it a politically interdependent, co-existing, and harmonious political force required for long-term political governance. Ecological environment and social ecological environment^[3].

2.2 Comprehensively and strictly govern the proper meaning of the party

It is a valuable experience of Marxist political parties to manage the party and strictly manage the party. Only by strictly administering the party and forging a strong leadership core can we truly provide direction and political guarantees for consolidating the ruling status and fulfilling the ruling mission. Under the conditions of a fundamental change in the party's historical position and historical mission, the party's political and ecological environment for managing the party and strictly administering the party has also undergone major changes.

2.3 The fundamentals for improving the party and government

From the perspective of political ecological construction, the situation of party style, political style and social atmosphere is the foundation and soil of political life of political parties, and it also restricts the quality of political ecology and the advantages and disadvantages of political environment. Strengthen and improve the party's work style construction, with the party style and political style

3. Governance and Reconstruction Political and Ecological Strategy in the New Period

3.1 Governance Political Ecology

The actual results have won the trust of the people, and have driven and influenced the social and folk customs. This is a solemn political commitment made by the Communist Party of China to the people. Improving work style means purifying the political ecology and creating a good environment for clean and honest administration.

For political ecology, purification is the prerequisite for reconstruction. Since the 18th National Congress of the Communist Party of China, in response to the increasingly serious corruption problems and political ecological chaos, the central government has put forward a strategic idea of “taking the remedy of the symptoms and winning the time for the root cause“ and launched a massive anti-corruption action^[4].

(1) "Strike"

General Secretary Xi Jinping stressed: "We must adhere to the 'tiger' flies' together, and resolutely investigate and deal with cases of violations of laws and regulations by leading cadres, and effectively solve the unhealthy trends and corruption problems that have occurred around the masses." The whole party launched a massive anti-corruption campaign. As of November 2015, there were more than 100 deputy ministers and officers above the military level.

(2) "Poor pursuit".

Strengthen bilateral and multilateral cooperation under the framework of the United Nations Convention against Corruption, issue the Beijing Anti-Corruption Declaration, launch an anti-corruption law enforcement cooperation network, establish a coordination mechanism for international pursuit and recovery work, and establish anti-corruption law enforcement with the United States, Canada, Australia and other countries. Cooperation, constantly eradicating the “a sin-free paradise“ of corrupt elements^[5]. Since the launch of the "Fox Hunting Action" in 2014, more than 500 people have been pursued and more than 3 billion yuan have been pursued.

(3) "Deep digging".

In response to the major cases that have been exposed, we will continue to dig deep, check and clean up, and stick to the corruption of "group gangs, party squads, and gangs". These powerful means of attack have plunged the arrogance of corrupt elements.^[6]The corruption phenomenon has been effectively curbed, and the political life of some corrupt "hardest hit areas" has gradually returned to normal, and the political ecology of the whole society has been purified to a certain extent. In the process of reconstructing the political ecology, we must continue to maintain a high-pressure situation against corrupt elements and treat all negative corruption behaviors with a "zero tolerance" attitude.

3.2 Specification power operation

By comprehensively deepening reforms, standardizing the operation of power from the strategic height of regulating the power order of the state and advancing the process of building democratic politics is the fundamental solution to the struggle against corruption.

(1) Coordinate the relationship between government, market and society. It is necessary to adapt to the objective needs of the modern social governance system, and steadily promote the reduction of power and decentralization, so that government power can be withdrawn from the fields or links that can be adjusted through market regulation and social autonomy, and also to the market and society.

(2) It is necessary to comprehensively deepen institutional reforms. It is necessary to comprehensively deepen all aspects of institutional reform and institutional innovation, including the economic system, the administrative system, the cadre and personnel system, and the judicial system, focusing on those areas or sectors with high levels of corruption, and reforming the system design that induces corruption. Really realize the system to manage people, manage power, manage affairs, manage money, and manage things, and strive to prevent and control corruption from the source.

(3) To innovate the power supervision and control mechanism. General Secretary Xi Jinping proposed: "We must strengthen supervision and control over the operation of power, and put power into institutional cages to form a mechanism that cannot be corrupted, not rot, and not perishable." To this end, we must scientifically allocate power and form power. The mechanism for restricting power; we must improve the democratic procedures and improve the mechanism for restricting power by rights; we must put power under the sun and improve the mechanism for the whole society to effectively supervise the operation of power.

3.3 Advance the rule of law against corruption

(1) To improve the anti-corruption system. After long-term exploration, we have built a leading system and working mechanism with anti-corruption characteristics with Chinese characteristics, such as the unified leadership of the party committee, the joint management of the party and government, the organization and coordination of the discipline inspection commission, the responsibility of the ministries, and the support and participation of the masses. We must continue to improve the anti-corruption system from the reform of the party's disciplinary inspection system and the implementation of the party's work style and clean government.

(2) It is necessary to discipline the party and discipline. In accordance with the requirements of comprehensively and rigorously administering the party, we should awaken the party constitutional awareness of the party and regulations, and implement the provisions of the "Chinese Communist Party's Code of Integrity and Self-discipline" and the "Regulations on Disciplinary Measures of the Communist Party of China."

(3) We must strengthen corruption in accordance with the law. It is necessary to strengthen anti-corruption legislation and implementation, limit and standardize the scope, methods, means, conditions and procedures for the exercise of public power, and minimize the space for corruption.

3.4 Cultivate anti-corruption consciousness

(1) We must unswervingly adhere to the ideals and beliefs of the Communists. Firmly enjoy the belief.

(2) Actively cultivate the publicThe new corporate ethics of the staff. It is necessary to clearly oppose the feudal official culture that still exists in fact, to break the personal dependency of the political field, and resolutely crack down on bad political behaviors such as establishing "the hills", engaging in sectarianism, gangs, and dissidents, and cultivating modern public officials. The rule of law, procedural awareness, and sense of responsibility form a healthy public ethic.

(3) It is necessary to vigorously promote the cultural consciousness of the whole society against corruption and promoting honesty. We will integrate anti-corruption education into the education of socialist core values, foster the participation and supervision of the majority of citizens in governing the country, and form a social atmosphere of cherishing honesty and humiliation and contempt for corruption in the whole society, and constantly fostering a clean and honest political ecology. The resulting culture is self-conscious.

4. Conclusion

In the new era, the political and ecological reconstruction within the party still has a long way to go. Seeking the path of political and ecological reconstruction within the party and realizing the fundamental improvement of the political ecology within the party is a major political task for the new era to further promote party building.
