1. Introduction

The thinking of rule of law requires us to advocate rule of law and effectively use legal means to solve practical problems. The thinking of rule of law has rational characteristics and is an advanced way of thinking based on legal norms. With the development of political civilization, new changes have taken place in the concept and thinking form of the rule of law. People's ideas are more changeable. Only the thinking mode of the rule of law can deal with all kinds of contradictions and conflicts, promote the construction of social harmony, and make people live a happy life. During the university period, we should continue to promote legal education and systematically study legal knowledge. Educators of law popularization should make more efforts to properly solve the problem of weak legal thinking of college students.

2. The significance of cultivating the thinking mode of university students in the rule of law

2.1 Is an important requirement of national legal construction

Law is not only a powerful weapon to protect people's rights, but also a code of conduct that must be observed. China's laws and regulations are becoming more and more perfect, making all laws and regulations deeply rooted in the hearts of the people, and become the basic rules that more people master when they participate in social activities, which is the key to the country's "comprehensive rule of law" [1]. If some people turn a blind eye to laws and regulations, and can't use legal means to deal with social affairs correctly, then the legal construction of the country will also become a lot of resistance. In modern society, the gain and loss of interests not only control people's moral thinking, but also form a wrong habit of economic thinking under the influence of various factors. As a special group with a high level of comprehensive quality, college students are the major breakthrough to realize the "rule of law in an all-round way". By organizing a series of activities related to universal law education, and training college students to form the correct way of thinking of the rule of law and economic thinking habits, the reform and innovation of college education can achieve ideal results with half the effort. Young college students must have a rational understanding of the way of thinking of the rule of law, establish a firm belief in the rule of law, and make due contributions to the construction of the country's legal system.

2.2 Is the constituent element of students' sound personality

College students have a sound personality, pay attention to regulate their behavior, strive to make breakthroughs in the right direction, and are more likely to become high-quality and ideal talents [2]. National laws permeate all aspects of social life, which are used to regulate people's social behavior. College students have a new understanding of the existence of individuals, improve their personality, ensure that they become a qualified social citizen, effectively use the way of thinking of the rule of law, properly solve learning problems and life affairs, learn to refuse all illegal and unreasonable requirements, and their individual independent ability The stronger, dare to bear their own social responsibility, and finally participate in various social activities in an independent capacity. In social practice, we will accumulate rich knowledge and experience, and successfully achieve the personalized growth goal.

2.3 Is the inevitable result of higher education reform

With the continuous improvement of the level of social rule of law, it is necessary to cultivate the thinking mode of rule of law for college students.

Encouraging college students to set the thinking mode of rule of law as the main thinking mode can play a role in promoting the comprehensive development of their moral thinking, political thinking, economic thinking and other abilities [3]. No matter in the promotion of law popularization education or in the development of social practice, the thinking mode of rule of law understood by college students has a kind of definition. Morality constrains their social behavior, sets up the correct view of learning and development and the value of life in a very complex social environment, forms the sense of rules, understands the principle of everyone's balance in front of the law, and uses them In the process of solving practical problems by legal means, the more thorough the understanding of the connotation of legal fairness is, the easier it is to continuously improve the competitive advantage of the subject in the legal society. College education has become the main way of the construction of the rule of law. Only when college students adapt to the rules of the rule of law society, have the courage to break the interference between right and wrong, and look at the development of the rule of law objectively, can they become a rare pillar.

3. A study on the strategy of Cultivating College Students' thinking mode of rule of law

3.1 pay attention to the education of law popularization and promote the work of law popularization

College students need to master legal concepts and rules, and understand legal procedures and legal operation. When cultivating the way of thinking of the rule of law for college students, the educators of the general law may as well enumerate the life cases, lead the students to analyze boldly and think actively, and use the correct legal means to solve the relevant problems. Law popularization education is the foundation, which creates a good teaching environment, enables college students to learn more legal knowledge, fully understand legal rules, and timely changes the wrong idea that only law students can learn legal related knowledge. With the continuous development of the comprehensive quality and ability of contemporary college students, it is only a matter of time before they occupy the dominant position in the fierce competition for talents Topic [4]. Law popularization education is an important part of the quality education system. Our teachers should do a good job in teaching and guidance. By organizing activities such as "publicity of the rule of law" and "learning of the rule of law", we should give students the opportunity to actively learn the knowledge of the rule of law, so as to grasp the thinking mode of the rule of law. On this basis, we should inculcate them with correct theory, try to increase practice, guide college students' abstract thinking to concrete transformation by means of application of simulated court and actual case analysis, ensure that they keep the enthusiasm of learning legal knowledge, and better penetrate the socialist legal education concept in step by step and imperceptibly.

3.2 Create a good environment for students to participate in practice

University is the most beautiful time in students' life. The continuous infiltration of healthy, positive and rich campus culture will make college students' campus life fun. The cultivation of College Students' thinking mode of the rule of law, through the campus culture edification, teachers' demonstration leadership, the construction of the rule of law campus and so on, is more in line with students' personalized development needs. First of all, school leaders should establish a correct concept of rule of law leadership, consciously accept supervision from multiple parties, and strive to play an exemplary role; second, teachers should form a correct concept of rule of law education, respect the right to know, the right to freedom, the right to participate, etc. of college students, and provide opportunities for students to cooperate in various affairs, so that students can continuously learn legal knowledge, take the initiative to develop standardized habits, and compete We should show our talents better in social practice, and constantly improve our self-management ability and self-control.

3.3 Moral union law to regulate students' behavior

There is a complementary relationship between morality and law. Some students mistakenly believe that there is a conflict in the study of law and moral development, so they do not establish moral standards when talking about law. However, the formation time of morality is far longer than that of law. Morality has "vitality" and should coexist with law. We should use morality and law to restrain people's behavior at the same time, carry forward positive energy continuously, and build a harmonious society [5]. Because of the high cost of law enforcement, the law generally plays a punitive role. Morality has soft binding force, which can be guided by public opinion and permeated by traditional ideas, and can successfully regulate some people's social behaviors. In some areas, if the law can not play a regulatory role, it is advisable to "punish the evil and promote the good" through morality. College students use the way of thinking of the rule of law, realize that morality has a strong supporting role for the rule of law culture, and promote the organic combination of the two in the process of social harmonious construction and social comprehensive practice. They abandon the wrong ideas, greatly improve the moral quality, and become the excellent talents with high quality, which is the supplement of the socialist rule of law construction strength.

4. Concluding remarks

In a word, as a new force of social construction, it is very important to cultivate their thinking mode of rule of law. We can encourage them to break through and develop in the right direction through law popularization education, publicity of rule of law and practical activities, so as to become the backbone of earnestly performing legal obligations and daring to maintain social harmony. Colleges and universities carry out various forms and rich content of legal education and teaching activities. From multiple levels and angles, promote the improvement of College Students' legal thinking level, let them join in the construction of a harmonious society and the purification of the legal environment, so as to achieve the overall development goal of socialism with Chinese characteristics faster. Please look forward to it!
